Guided by nature, led by locals

There's a special magic to the Engadin as it shifts from autumn to winter, a feeling I have known my whole life and shaped the way I view the world. Autumn brings a deep tranquility and winter arrives with a crisp brilliance. Both seasons offer something unique, and I love sharing those moments with our guests. This year, I'll be joining you on select excursions, stepping out into my home valley together to immerse ourselves in the natural beauty.

In autumn, two very special adventures await. The first is a high-altitude fire hike, a brand new experience. We'll journey from the hotel to the top of Muottas Muragl, riding the funicular to one of the most spectacular viewpoints in the Engadin. There, we'll gather around an open fire to prepare regional specialties, enjoy refreshing drinks paired with the spellbinding scenery.

The second is a returning favourite as we go wildlife watching in Val Bever. We'll explore this hidden valley as dusk falls, using thermal imaging to reveal red deer, ibex and foxes as they begin their nightly routines in the twilight..

When winter settles in, I'll be inviting you to join me out on the frozen lakes in March. This is a uniquely wonderful moment in the valley as the ice remains firm, the sun lingers longer each day and the air feels fresh but gentle with the approaching spring. We'll cross-country ski across the glittering surface, carrying a picnic basket for a leisurely brunch right there on the lake. It's a time when the valley seems to slow just enough for you to savour it all.
